About the Antitrust Section of the New York Bar Association

The Antitrust Law section provides a forum in which attorneys and law students can learn about and keep up with developments in competition law and complex litigation generally. The section covers not only U.S. national developments, but also international activity and New York State antitrust enforcement.

Section activities include (1) monthly meetings of the group's Executive Committee, (2) an annual day-long program and series of evening events, held each January in conjunction with the New York State Bar Association's annual meeting, and (3) special programs in the mid-summer and fall.

The Section also has six standing subcommittees, which focus on (1) diversity in the Section, (2) cartel and criminal practice, (3) class actions, (4) coordinated conduct (5) mergers, and (6) unilateral conduct. The subcommittees similarly hold regular meetings, special programs and brownbag discussions.

Annual Meeting Events:

The Section's annual meeting events consist of topical panels, presented during the day, followed by a reception, dinner and dessert buffet in the evening. The evening events are attended by roughly 350 persons, and the day events by about 100.

At the 2016 annual meeting, the keynote speaker was Dr. Ted Snyder, Dean of the Yale University School of Management. At the prior year's meeting, Bill Baer, Assistant Attorney General for the Antitrust Division of the DOJ was the featured dinner speaker. The daytime panels have covered a wide range of antitrust topics, including, recently, annual developments in antitrust law, role of an efficiency defense in merger litigation, antitrust issues associated with collegiate and professional sports, antitrust implications of financial benchmarking practices, and competition issues impacting the pharmaceutical industry.

Other Section Activities:

The Executive Committee's monthly meetings handle regular business, followed by a one-hour speaker's presentation. These monthly programs cover a wide-range of subjects, which recently have included the Second Circuit's recent decision in U.S. v. American Express; the resolution of the Apple E-Books litigation; antitrust implications of institutional investors holding positions in multiple competitors in the same industry; and other topics. Any Section member may attend these programs, either in person or by phone dial-in. Some of these programs offer CLE credit at no charge. The Section also sponsors a Summer merger program and a Fall program on varying topics, and periodically co-sponsors special programs.

The programs are open to Section members and non-members alike.

The Section also sponsors a yearly writing competition open to students at law schools located in New York, and to New York state residents in law schools outside the State. The student whose paper is selected as the winning entry receives a $5000 award.

Additional Information:

There are more than 525 members of the Section, and roughly 60 Executive Committee members. The Section's website is located at:

<http://www.nysba.org/anti>

The website is regularly updated to link to materials presented at the Section's programs, and to competition law developments generally.
